We are reaping what we sowed in election

To the editor:

Regarding the story in your Dec. 11 issue headlined "Delegation's support of commission indecisive," I think that Rep. Sue Gottling's quote therein "I don't understand what's happening, for me this is an education." Illustrates the primary cause of our current troubles at the county and in Concord.

The perfect storm of Bush-hate during the last election swept into office too many inexperienced and unsophisticated Democrats and has a wave of poorly thought court actions; including the fiscal meltdown at the Sullivan County nursing home.

The fumbling management shown by this story makes clear the folly of entrusting the management of our County's business to ideological amateurs.

I hope that we voters have learned our lesson and will elect better candidates next time.
